Getting to West Oxford Community Centre

The Centre is on the West side of Oxford, on the Botley Road opposite St Frideswide's Church.

Buses

Because of the closure of Botley Road at Oxford railway station, bus services from the city centre are not operating normally. Buses from the West are operating well and stop outside the Community Centre. For more information please see the Oxford Bus Company website at <https://www.oxfordbus.co.uk/botley-road-closure> and the Stagecoach page at <https://www.stagecoachbus.com/promos-and-offers/oxfordshire/botley-road-closure>.

Car

Because of the closure of Botley Road at Oxford railway station, you need to approach the centre from the West rather than driving through central Oxford.

The centre itself does have a small car park. In addition two parking spaces are available at the church opposite. There are "Road Closed" signs before you get to the centre but you can go through them if you are going to the centre.

Alternatively you can park in the Seacourt Park and Ride

http://www.parkandride.net/oxford/html/oxford_parkandride.html from which it's a short walk or you can take a bus towards the City Centre and get off at the first stop.

There is almost no street parking (except for cars with West Oxford Residents parking permits or Visitor permits).

For further information and the latest updates, please go to our website at <https://srp.org.uk/oxford> and click the Venue button.

Train

The centre is 10 minutes' walk from the station. From the main entrance you will need to follow the pedestrian walkway past the works to the main Botley Road west out of town. Cross the river and we are right opposite the church.

Accessibility

The building is fully accessible to wheelchair users and there is a blue badge parking space. You can find further information by going to our website at <https://srp.org.uk/oxford> and clicking the Venue button.
